STORRS, CT -- Under the baton of conductor Keith Lockhart, the celebrated Boston Pops On Tour will once again take the stage at UConn's Jorgensen Center for the Performing Arts on Saturday evening, December 14th, for their annual Boston Pops Holiday Concert, a joyous night of holiday music guaranteed to delight concertgoers of all ages. Celebrate the magic of the season with "America's orchestra," the most recorded and arguably the most beloved orchestra in the country. Perfect for music lovers of all ages, treat yourself to this beloved tradition at Jorgensen, bursting with holiday music favorites and a surprise visit by jolly old St. Nick with another special guest narrator.

"The Boston Pops On Tour performance has become a holiday tradition within the UConn community," according to Rodney Rock, Director of Jorgensen. "Each year, families are drawn closer together through the joy that is present within each member of the orchestra. This year marks a special occasion, as we welcome a special guest narrator. We are thrilled to once again host this fantastic performance, and I hope this tradition will continue for years to come."

With an inspirational mix of everyone's favorite carols, popular holiday classics, new twists on familiar tunes, and the traditional Pop's audience sing-along, the program perfectly captures the merriment, magic, and wonder of this special time of the year. Doors will open at 7:00 pm. Concert begins at 8:00 pm.
