Direct from Spain, internationally renowned Flamenco dance icon Eduardo Guerrero brings his athleticism, mesmerizing charisma, and limitless creative artistry to the stage at UConn’s Jorgensen Center for the Performing Arts on Wednesday evening, October 3 when he leads Compania Flamenco, his troupe of elite dancers, singers, and musicians, in a presentation of “Flamenco Passion”. The captivating performance combines classical and contemporary Spanish dance, ballet, and remarkable feats of contortion to create a powerful physical and emotional ‘tour de force’ which promises to leave audiences inspired and exhilarated.

Guerrero’s work as a choreographer has been praised by Flamenco Divino magazine as “modern and courageous”. And as a dancer, the publication hailed his artistry as having “no limits, because he does not seem to need them. He dances the impossible.” Guerrero began his education in dance at the age of six. At 19 he began working with major artists on the national scene, touring the globe with the world’s top Flamenco dance companies, at the side of the greatest names in dance, at the best-known and most prestigious theatres and dance festivals. In 2011 he launched his solo career, taking over the creation of his own performances.
