STORRS, CT – What happens when you feed spicy tacos to your new dragon friends? How can you draw a wonderful picture by starting with just a single tiny dot? Should your horse be allowed in class with you because he's your best friend? What happens when a pig decides to drive a car, or a talkative little chicken won't stop interrupting? These are the delightful storylines young audiences (age 4 and up) will explore when Theaterworks USA Productions brings Dragons Love Tacos and Other Stories to UConn's Jorgensen Center for the Performing Arts on Sunday afternoon, October 20. The lively musical review of beloved contemporary children's books –which includes the New York Times best-selling Dragons Love Tacos by Adam Rubin and Interrupting Chicken by David Ezra Stein – teaches lessons about friendship, getting along, creativity, and dreaming big, and is full of fun for the entire family.

Families are encouraged to arrive early to the performance to visit a taco truck on the patio of Jorgensen Center. Approximate running time: 50 minutes. Doors open at 1:30 pm. Show begins at 2:00 pm.
